GIANTS' PITCHERS CANNOT HALT SOX. THINKS FULLERTON

By HUGH S. FULLERTON. NEW YORK, Oct. 10 .- So far as the dope is concerned, yesterday's cold and clammy precipitation had little effect. McGraw announced with some boldness that Benton would pitch the third game, which probably means he will start Schupp.

At least Schupp is his test cold weather pitcher, and the weather indications are that if the rain stops it will be cold. Also, there is some doubt as to whether the rain eye will stop.
In spite of the rain, the day was one of restless activity in the camps of the two teams. The Giants held a protracted meeting, and what Mc-Graw said to them made them think that I always have been a booster for them. If I wrote what McGraw and eight of them would draw lots to see which should have the pleasure of killing me.

Gianta Still In Fight.

However, McGraw and his men were in dead earnest. They were discussing ways and means of windiscussing ways and means of winning a game and keeping the National League from looking more bushy than it does. Of course, they talked about winning the series, but what they meant was that if they didn't win at least one game they wouldn't dare go home.

During the rain I sat down and studied what has happened. My conclusion is that the Glants are not team really has played good ball, and that under trying circumstances. The flaw in the team seems to be that McGraw does not possess pitchers who can stop the White Sox. With a pitcher holding the White Sox they would look a close match for the American League champiors. Their inside work in attack and their inside defensive work has been at least equal to that of the Sox. at least equal to that of the Sox only Kauff and Zimmerman falling hold up their ends.

If McGraw chooses Benton today the White Sox, with Cicotte working, cught to win the game about 4 to 1 or 4 to 2. If McGraw sends Schupp to the slab again the score ought to be either in favor of the Glants or 5 to 1 or 5 to 2 in favor of the White Sox.

In other words Schupp either will pitch airtight ball or he will beat himself early in the game. (Copyright, 1917, by Hugh S. Fuller-

This is only one more rock over which minor leagues must crawl before they can see their way to prosperous baseball next season. The sale of players always has been one of their principal sources of revenue.
